PRESENTERS

Dr. Beth Phillips PhD, RN, CNE, CHSE is the Strategic Nursing Advisor for Ascend Learning/ ATI. She is Faculty Emeritus at Duke University School of Nursing, having taught there for 16 years in the Accelerated BSN and MSN in Nursing Education programs. Beth was also the Director of the Institute for Educational Excellence at Duke where she was responsible for faculty orientation and development, clinical instructor orientation, and continued competence for educators. Beth has been active on curriculum committees at both the SON and the SOM. Beth served on the Educational subgroup of the Racial Justice Taskforce for the last year. In addition, Beth was instrumental in overseeing the review of the curricula in the School's four programs for evidence of Bias. Prior to Duke, Beth spent 9 years at Vance Granville Community College, where she taught in and directed the ADN and LPN programs. Prior to teaching, Beth spent 13 years working in surgical trauma ICU. Beth received her ADN from Waukesha County Technical Institute in Wisconsin; her BSN from East Carolina University; her MSN from Duke; and her PhD in Nursing from the University of Wisconsin Milwaukee. Beth has a passion for equity and inclusion, faculty onboarding, and innovations in education. Beth has published on educational strategies, completed research on clinical decision making in nursing students, and students' intent to become faculty, among other topics. Beth has presented nationally and internationally on nursing education topics. Beth is actively involved in the International Society for Professional Identity in Nursing.

Barton Bishop (MFA, NYU) is a designer, writer, and educator. Barton is currently the Senior Manager of Learning Design and Simulation with the Innovative Learning Science division of Ascend Learning where he leads a team of Learning Strategists, Instructional Designers, and Simulation Designers contributing to learning products across Ascend's portfolio, including ATI. Prior to joining Ascend, Barton was Narrative Design Director with Gameloft, one of the most successful mobile gaming companies in the world. He led a team of Narrative Designers and Writers working with multiple development studios around the world, and partnering with multiple creative licensors, including Marvel, Disney, Blue Sky Productions, Warner Brothers, and Ubisoft. Barton is currently an adjunct professor at New York University's Gallatin School, where he teaches several courses exploring narrative game design.